As to the Feasibility of Rebuilding the Dam at Austin.

PROBABILITIES OF STATE ENCAMPMENT

Adjutant General Desires Ambitious Cities to Take Some Action-Notes of the State Departments.

Austin, Texas, March 25. The report of Engineers W. F. Foster and R. T. Creighton on the rebuilding of the dam has ereared a great deal of local interest. The rax payers as a general rule, are in favor of the dam being rebuilt, and while the subject is at fever best just now, if is confidently believed that the structure will again dam the Colorade. The engineers report that five hundred feet of the dam remain on the west side and ninety one feet on the east side. On ninety one feet portion it must be removed and reconstructed. There is a leak there and the foundation must be sunk deeper. A deposit of earth and silt east of the prescor concerned commet must be removed.

Seven soundings were taken showing conclusively that not only the foundation stone is gaue, but that bed rock itself was broken and washed out to a depth in some places of more than aix feet.

These soundings were taken near the west end of the gap, but the engineers are satisfied the washout extends to the east end. and reconstructed. There is a leak there Adjutant General Scarry is thinking of putting a notice in all of the papers, to the effect, that unless something is received in the way of a bid by May I, that the idea of an elecampment for this year will be declared off. The department assumes the attitude that one of the larger towns in the State can easily make arrangements for a gathering of the military boys, without a great deal of effort, and he has hopes that something of the kind will be brought about before a great length of time.

The State has $10,000 which can be used for the purpose and with a little assistance from one of the cities an encampment of the State troops can be held this year.
